

Dialogue

A: Do you believe in a God who rewards good and punishes wrong-doing?

B: Well, I'm an agnostic. I don't know whether or not God exists, but if there is a God I hope he or she doesn't punish wrong-doing.

A: We punish murderers and rapists on Earth, so why shouldn't the same people rot in hell?

B: Because I'd prefer to discover an understanding God than a God of vengeance.

A: But everybody is free to choose between right and wrong.

B: I happen to believe that our choices can be traced back to their causes, some hereditary and some environmental.

A: But if you followed that line to its logical conclusion, you'd pardon all criminals.

B: Not at all.

A: Then why shouldn't God send evil people to hell?

B: I would agree with you if the purpose of hell was to rehabilitate people, but hell is usually associated with torture.

A: But God gives people second chances. None of us is perfect.

B: But we can't help what we are. I still maintain that an understanding God would prefer rehabilitation to torture.

Vocabulary

agnostic

rot

vengeance

hereditary conclusion

pardon

rehabilitate

LET'S TALK

1. What is an agnostic?
2. Do you agree that God is the God of vengeance?
3. According to person B, what causes our decision?
4. One of the commandments is “love your enemy”. Can you do this?
5. Do people have free will to choose between right or wrong or are our choices determined by hereditary and environmental influences?

