

The dialogue is about a taxi driver with a discriminating remark towards other people.

Driver: Good day, sir. Where to?

Passenger: Actually, this is my first time to visit the city so I have no idea where to go. What would you recommend?

Driver: What sort of things are you interested in?

Passenger: I like art. I heard about Yuki Art Museum. What do you think?

Driver: I won't go there. That's in a gay neighborhood. A lot of homosexuals are there walking around holding hands and kissing one another. I'd stay away from there if I were you.

Passenger: Really? Why don't you take me there?

Driver: Ok, then. Suit yourself.

Passenger: Why? What's wrong with the gays?

Driver: They're sick perverts. They're not normal and lots of them have AIDS. Aren't you scared of acquiring one?

Passenger: I know quite a few gay people, and they're not sick at all. They're nice, too. What makes you think that way? Have you talked to a gay person?

Driver: Talk to one? I would punch him if I get a chance.

Passenger: Why? What did they do to you?

Driver: Nothing. I just don't like them.

Passenger: Well, that's enough Mister! I'm a gay and I can't take anymore the things you said about us! Could you let me get off, please. I'd rather take the subway.

What would you do?

Read the following situations and give your opinion.

Imagine you just arrived in another country and has just checked in a hotel. Upon getting off the elevator, you heard some people laughing and saying insulting words. What would you do?

You and your good-looking friend applied for the same job at the same company. Although you did better in school and have an impressive resume, your friend gets hired instead of you. How would you feel? What would you do?

A woman was recently hired by your company. For three weeks now, she has been complaining that your boss keeps asking her to make coffee for him and his business associates. This task, making coffee, is not part of her job description and this makes her totally upset. What would you do?
